
View this email in your browser

Good afternoon Brethren!

Once again, I have let the days slip past! I hope you all are doing well and prospering in the Lord.

Winter has hit in earnest here in Montana. We have had several inches of snow accumulate over the last few days. I love the snowy weather, but the roads have been a mess for a couple of days now (which is a rarity!).

The work continues to go well, though the holiday season tends to have things slow down with outside studies. Many of the people we have been working with put things on hold while they travel, or take care of other family responsibilities. So, while our normal classes continue with the congregation, those in the community have been very hit or miss.

We continue to work through Paul's epistles to Timothy and Titus. We completed 1 Timothy and are now studying through Titus, as I want to cover them in chronological order. These have been such encouraging studies for me, and I believe they are so for the rest who are in the class. Justin has been teaching a teenage class on Wednesday evenings, and they are currently studying the book of Judges.

On Sunday, I am continuing through the book of Genesis. We are currently ready to study about the sacrifice of Isaac. We have enjoyed talking about some of the foreshadowing that takes place in the account of the sacrifice of Isaac and the sacrifice that God made of His own son.

I did take a bit of a break from the study in Acts on Friday mornings, but we were able to get back to it and have continued to progress. We are currently up to Paul's work in Athens in Acts 17. Lord willing, tomorrow we will begin looking in greater depth at the sermon Paul presented there at the Areopagus.

We did take some time around the Thanksgiving holiday to do some hunting. This is one of our favorite pastimes, though work schedules of the older kids keeps us from getting out as much as we'd like sometimes. We were able to be successful enough to put up some meat for the coming year that we will be able to enjoy and share with others. It is always a joy to get out and experience God's beautiful creation. Unfortunately, I was hampered a little this year by the health issues that has plagued me for most of the year, so I was not able to get as far into the mountains as I would have liked!

We plan to visit family for a couple of weeks over the end of the year. We will fly into Nashville and then drive around the eastern states to visit with family and friends in West Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee, and Alabama. Your prayers for safe travels are much appreciated!

Thank you all so much for your care and concern for us here in Montana! We appreciate your financial support, your prayers, and your notes of encouragement. May God continue to bless you in all of your endeavors in His kingdom!

In Him,

Kris Brewer